

Monday

The Daily Unifarce

Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah

Vol. 8 Issue 10

Today

- Locked cases in the Library will be unlocked from 3-4pm.
- Quality footwear appreciation day
- How to win friends and influence people by Josh Luke. 6pm 436 SWKT.
- Only 568 days til graduation

6
Dec
1993

Long lines prompt compliments from students

By BOB DUKE

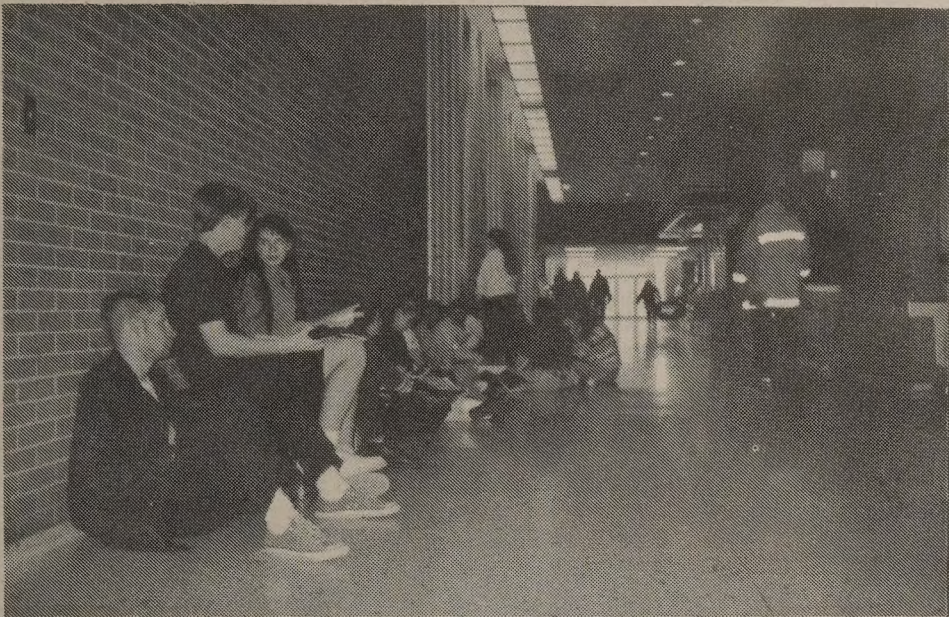

Unifarce Sports Writer

Writing thank you notes of praise was a welcome activity for BYU students who stood in long lines, waiting hours for BYU student identification cards several months ago.

SAC representative DawnLynn Campbell explains: "When the ID lines were long, we received literally hundreds of thank-you notes from students pleased with being stuck for hours." For two weeks after ID distribution ended, BYU Mail Services was delivering an entire bag of thank-yous every day. BYUSA student volunteers, who spent hours waiting in the volunteer line, spent weeks going through and personally answering these letters for BYU President Rex Lee.

Unfortunately, not all students enjoyed waiting in the ID lines. For their benefit, the "30 Minutes from this Point" Club was formed by students who felt they should do something to help their fellow students enjoy a part of their BYU education. Club founder Queue Waiter says, "When we were waiting in line, I couldn't help but notice people who weren't realizing the blessings of being in line. I knew I had to do something."

The "30 Minutes from this Point" Club meets every Wednesday night in the ELWC basement at 7:30 pm.. For students who would like to attend, Waiter has some advice: "The line starts forming around 3:00 pm, so come early! The earlier the better!" For those who cannot make it to the meeting, the Club has a weekly service project every Friday waiting in the Late Night movie line at the Varsity Theater.

CLUB WAITERS: A "special" group of BYU students love waiting in lines so much they formed a club. Here are left to right: Josh Luke, Sean Shepp, (not identified), Bob Filmore, Mahatama Jones, (not identified), (not identified), and Dave Letterman (not pictured).

On Saturday mornings, the Club has field trips to the Utah Department of Motor Vehicles. Waiter explains, "Well, we get in line to get a driver's license, and then when we finally get to the counter, and they realize we already have licenses, we go over and stand in the Information line waiting to ask questions." Of course, all this practice could only lead to one thing: the Annual President's Day weekend trip to Disneyland. Club Treasurer Phil Standing says of the trip, "This is what we spend all year preparing for. Being able to stand in line at Disneyland for 36 hours straight makes the previous year of non-stop waiting in line worth every minute of it."

Standing would also like to point out that although the "30 Minutes from this Point" Club is not affiliated with the "People who like to be Placed on Hold" Club, the two clubs do have an informal relationship. "In fact," notes Standing, "we have a lot of crossover membership."

Another unifying point that these clubs have is their opposition to a plan by SAC to consolidate them with several other clubs, namely, Traffic Jam Lover's Anonymous, the Hospital Emergency Waiting Room Appreciation Society, and the "People Who Wait in Concert Ticket Lines but Don't Buy Tickets" Club. Waiter, "30 Minutes from this Point" president, was unequivocal in stating his opposition to this plan. "We waited too long to get our own club for this to happen. We waited too long for club offices for this to happen. Our members have been in too many long lines for SAC to say to them that efforts are of no worth. Those SAC highbrows have obviously never waited in line with us," said Waiter.

Treasurer Standing feels that a combined club is not logistically possible. "I just don't think that all these clubs have anything in common. I mean, what kind of club name could adequately describe all these individual groups?" queried Standing. It was unclear if SAC intends to include the "People who Like to Read Junk Mail" Club in the proposed consolidation.

BYU grounds crew lauded for its grass grooming

By DAN SUTRE

Unifarce Sports Writer

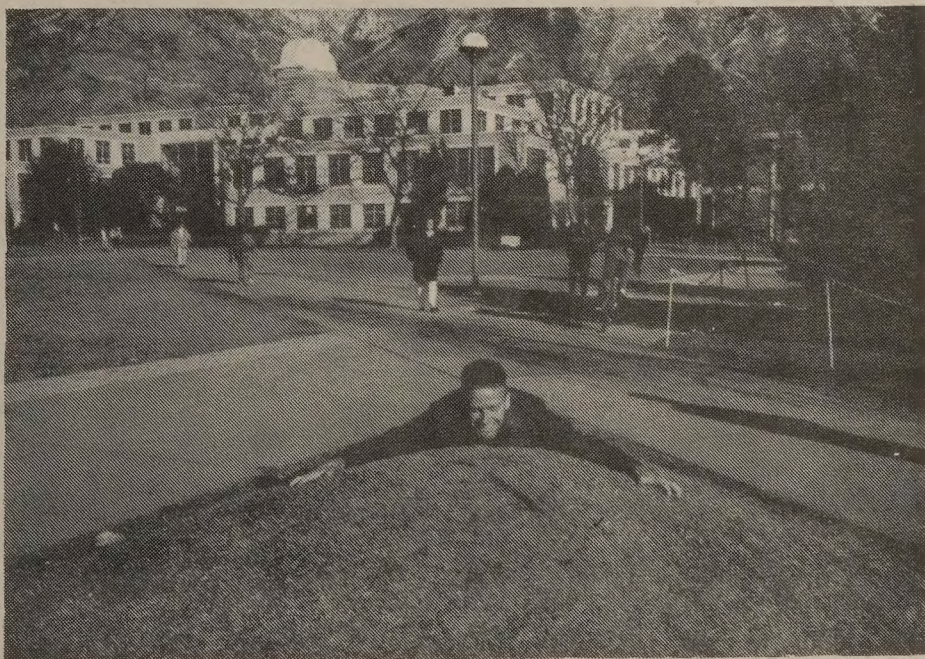

Representatives of the award-winning BYU Grounds Crew flew out to Augusta, Georgia for the annual "Sod and Me" Convention to accept the Spiffy Turf award on behalf of BYU's 3027 Grounds Crew employees.

The award is given yearly to the most conscientious and thorough groundskeepers of the nation's universities. Participating schools were judged on cleanliness, consistency, and color of their grass. Also considered was the general demeanor of the staff.

The Spiffy Turf award consists of a full-size, bronzed weed wacker and a $9081 scholarship, which amounts to $3 for each Grounds Crew member.

According to head judge Jerry "the Garden Weasel" Baker, "what really cinched it for the BYU kids was their modest work attire. It sure was a real pleasure to meet students who give such a good name to lawn care." Rounding off the panel were Lawn Boy, the Snapper Turtle, and John Deere.

Jep Jepson, Area Supervisor over the stretch of grass between the JSB and the Brimhall building, expressed his delight in receiving the award, "Boy, what a great feeling to be rewarded for your efforts." He continued, "There were a few times when I had to tackle pedestrians who were going to cut across the grass or mow the lawn twice in one day. But it's all worth it now. We want this to be a campus that influential BYU student Josh Luke can be proud of."

LUV DAT GRAZZ: Josh Duke, a junior majoring in agricultural studies publicly shows affection for BYU's award winning grass.

Inside

- Revealing photos of important people and their closest friends
- 15 people in Provo
- BYU Football team to play football again

Sections:

- Sports.... 2
- Sports....3
- Sports....4
- Sports....5
- Sports....6

Correction

- On the front page of Teusday's Daily Unifarce Mr. Terry Bonzini was quoted as saying, "As a woman I took offense at the allegations made." Mr. Bonzini is actually Mrs. Bonzini. The Unifarce regrets the error.
- In the corrections box of tooday's issue Tuesday was misspelled. The Unifarce regrets the error.

Non-Correction

The empty box in the lower right corner of last Wednesday's Daily Unifarce was not an error. It was intentionally left blank to teach Opinion editor Tom Gulch a lesson. He has been very irresponsible in his duties. So if you have a problem with it go talk to him. The Daily Unifarce regrets having hired Tom.

News Briefs

Breather bill blocks ballistic battle

LINCOLN, NE—In an attempt to unite opposing forces over the gun control issue Ralph Breather (D-Nebraska) has proposed the Breather Bill. The compromise solution adapts the idea of the Brady Bill's waiting period by requiring the potential gun buyer to take a deep breath and count to ten before being allowed to purchase a firearm. Another precaution written into the Breather Bill mandates that anyone interested in buying a gun must provide a notarized petition of at least ten names of people that he/she has never threatened to shoot.

Monument was "White Elephant" Gift

NEW YORK, NY—Documents unearthed in Manhattan on Friday reveal that New York's famous Statue of Liberty was actually a white elephant gift received at a party for rich, practical joking mayors from around the world in the late 1800s. "Apparently, it wasn't uncommon for mayors of that era to gather and exchange ridiculous looking monuments," said Raymond Whitney, a professor of Large Statue Studies at Flushing Community College in New York. According to the documents, New York City Mayor Ian Roberts angrily opened the large box containing the statue after France snatched away the Eiffel Tower late in the game. "I thought the tower would have looked spiffy in our harbor," said the late mayor. Whitney claimed that the news wasn't all bad for New York: "In that game, Roberts was able to unload the Leaning Tower of Brooklyn and the Bronx Ruins on the mayors of Pisa and Rome. Boy, did they ever feel stupid." Italy was unavailable for comment.

Short stories abound

CLEVELAND, OH—Researchers at Cleveland Community College released a report Thursday that shed new light on college journalism. The report claims many newspapers use short, unimportant stories to fill empty space at the corner of their pages. "What happens is this," said Johanna Beezmore, a college spokesperson, "A paper will take a boring story and bury it in the poor location of the upper corner. Then, just as soon as the necessary space is filled, they end the story abruptly, even though it's not.

Whether

YESTERDAY	MONDAY	THE NEXT DAY
in Provo High: Yes Low: Not yet Preci... Precipi... (Wet Stuff) Yesterday: Yes Month to date: December 1	 MOSTLY CLOUDY More clouds than son	 PARTLY SONNY Less son than clouds

The Daily Uniforce

The Daily Uniforce is an unofficial publication of The National Hernia Support Association. We support anyone with Hernia. The paper is published every December 6, 1993. For a manuscript of the paper send $10 to your mom. If you wish to subscribe to The Uniforce add an additional $10 in the check to your mom. While we can't prove it, we believe the opinions expressed in this paper are those of BYU, UVSC, The Daily Uniforce, Student Review, Provo Daily Herald, Gnusweek, Life Magazine, and Coca Cola corporation.

Sports editor
Assistant sports editor
Secret sports editor
Super secret sports editor
Super double secret sports editor
Sports writer
Sports ad director
Sports opinion editor
Sports assistant opinion editor
Sports Lifestyle editor
Sports Campus editor
Sports lover
Sports photographer
World national sport editor
Night sports editor

Frying Bagel
Mickie Lerner
Ilene Wren
George Mall
Claude Guter
Josh Puke
Bessie Boutsfell
Chad Mulch
Darlene Spacklemang
Vikki Paddywhack
Place Matt
Kristen Sorebum
Brit Fender
Emma Sillyhands
Jolly Jason

"Yea behold and therefore shall come a time when thee, thyself and I, shall hither up asunder to the valley and devour thy cedars, and then be saved."
--Micah 12:4-5

Mike Arnold likes this scripture because "I was under pressure and it's the best thing I could come up with."

- Mike is:
- a sophomore
 - from Ypsilanti, Michigan
 - under observation

Policy pulling puts policy director in pickle at press conference

By DALTON BRADY
Uniforce Sports Writer

Recently much concern has been voiced over the absence of policy at BYU. A hearing is set for the first of the new year to discuss the role of policies at BYU. Opposing sides have divided and begun to exchange blows.

Bryce Chafen, Vice President of Policies, feels that

—That influential BYU person, Josh Luke

the future of the university is at risk without policies. "Where there are no policies, there will always be contention," he explained at a press conference last Thursday. "And where there is contention, there will never be policies."

At the same conference, Klaus Magilicutty, Administrative Assistant to the Director of Policy Revoking, stated, "I revoke what Bryce just said."

A fistfight ensued until a temporary policy of no fistfighting on campus was agreed upon by an Ad Hoc policy council. The policy was revoked and then reinstated immediately thereafter.

"This policy will stay in effect until we can get some advice from that influential BYU person, Josh Luke," said Farrell Sorrensen, chairperson of the Ad Hoc council.

BYU's official parking policy outlined

By BOB GIBERISH
Uniforce Sports Writer

in an "I Lot" anytime, unless you've parked in a "C Lot" first.

Due to the increasing confusion about BYU's parking lot policy, BYU officials had issued this official outline to clarify any confusions that may have arisen with recent changes to the policy.

A Lots- You may park here on alternating Tuesdays between 6:45 and 7:00 am unless you have Oregon license plates, in which case you may only park between 12:37 and 12:46 am on days when there is a full moon.

B Lots- Park here anytime if you are a Freshman from Scalpel Nest Pennsylvania, everyone else can only park here on alternating Saturdays when BYU College Bowl team wins by 30 points or more.

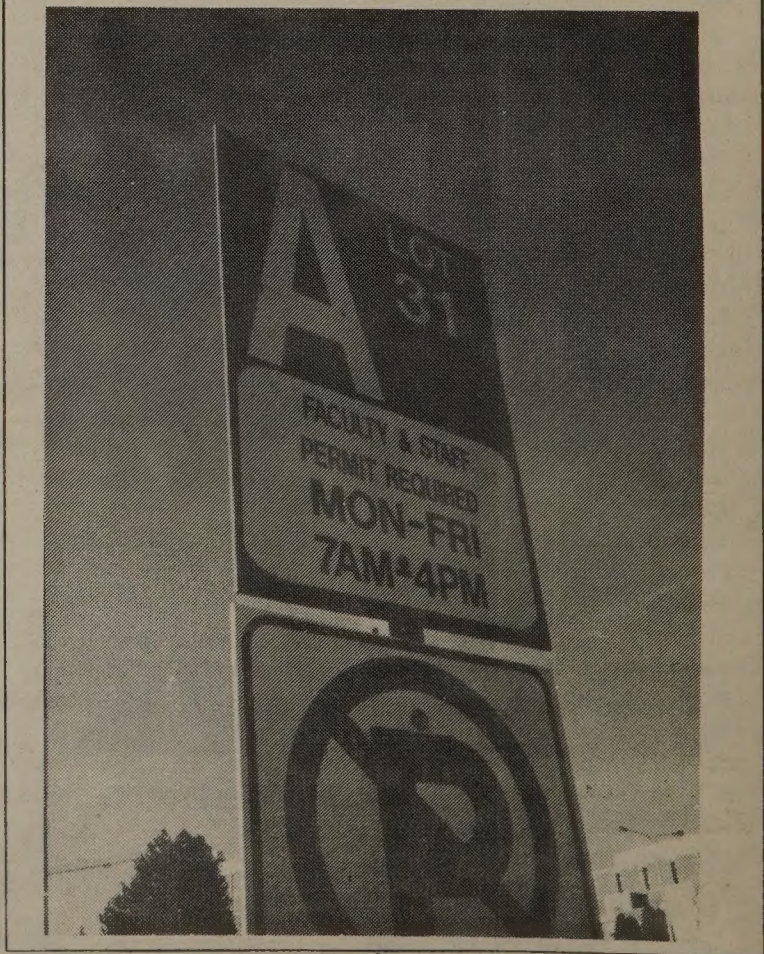

C Lots- Park here all day if you actually know someone named Jeremiah and can prove it, otherwise you aren't allowed to park here at all.

D Lots- Park here anytime if you know someone who takes Swedish and can translate "Jag alaska dig" into Japanese. Otherwise, Hhashannah if you are from Iraq.

E Lots- Park here after you park

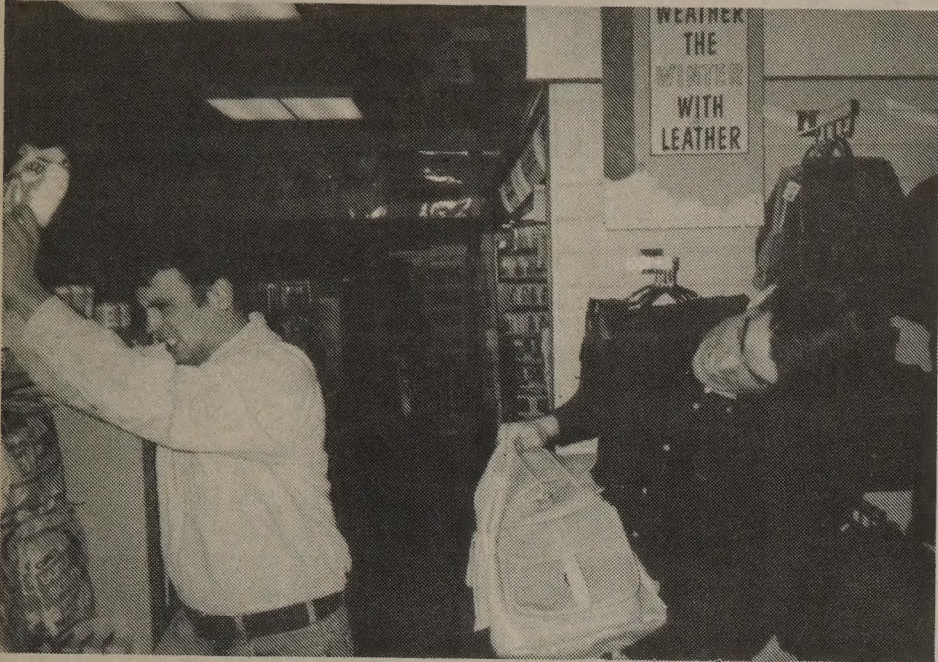

F Lots- Park here only if you live in Wimptinka, Maryland anytime, otherwise, don't even think about G Lots- They tore these out last year to build the new Science Center, what are you still trying to park here for?

WHOA MOMMA STAY UP: It's signs like these that scare most weary student drivers, but you don't have to be afraid if you've read the new regulations.

Campus

REENACTMENT: Bert and Ernie Simmons reenact the fateful afternoon when Maria and Loretta were trapped in the BYU Bookstore.

Devotional ditchers trapped in bookstore

By MARVIN EHRET
Uniforce Sports Writer

Maria Pickler, an electrical engineering major from Baton Rouge, Louisiana, and her best friend Loretta Farnsworth, age 23 from Blythe, California, found themselves trapped in the Bookstore at 11:03 on Tuesday, December 7. While debating over what fluorescent decorative glue to use for their Relief Society homemaking poster, Maria noticed the time and, grabbing Loretta's arm, ran for the exit just as Bryan Sampson, a 24 year old public safety major from Schnektedy, New York, was securing the gate. The automatic devotional locking mechanism overpowered the two ladies. Unable to control their fear, they frantically started pounding on the gate, upturning barrels of granola, and consuming mass quantities of Hostess products. "We always eat when we get nervous," said Loretta. While no legal action will be taken, as an example to other students, there will be a public spanking during next week's devotional in the Marriot Center. "We believe that this will help the girls learn their lesson and boost attendance at the next devotional," said BYU Spokesman Richard Lockheart, Jr.

"We have learned our lesson. We are committed to not miss another devotional," said Loretta in a prepared statement.

Maria and Loretta became friends when they met in Budge Hall during their freshman year. "We bumped into each other while scooping jello surprise delight onto our dishes. Loretta dumped her tray all over the Cannon Center floor. She was asked to mop up the mess and therefore arrived late to her intramural badminton match," recalls Maria.

In the Smith Family Living Center, Sarina Underwood, a modern dance major from Peoria, Illinois, was trapped in a bathroom stall on the second floor. University Police are investigating whether the two incidents are related.

DT to have party

By IAN JOHNSON
Uniforce Sports Writer

The Deseret Towers' annual Christmas party is sure to be a ragin' one this year. The V-Hall honor students have made special arrangements for the entire dormitory population to attend the ALL, My Name, and Lemons show at Club DV8 on December 8th. Jay Bradley, a sophomore majoring in computer science and V-Hall resident, is coordinating the party. "It's sure to be an interesting evening, I just hope that not too many students lose their Birkenstocks trying to dance. Boots with steel toes are really more appropriate footwear for the evening." When asked if Club DV8 was really the best venue for the Christmas party Bradley replied, "Sure, we planned it so the tunes played at this gig will simply be too fast to allow for any immoral slowdance intimacy to occur, unlike the last holiday party DT hosted."

The bands playing on the bill represent a plethora of musical styles from tight, fast hardcore to the melodic twists of guitar-based ballads. But what they all have in common is a love for good, clean fun. ALL releases albums on CRUZ records (Christian Revival of United Zoobies), which also manufactures faith promoting stories on audio tape and biblical action figures. My Name currently is on C/Z records, another well-known inspirational gospel label, and travel extensively "spreading the good rock." Lemons stayed in obscurity for many years until the group recently saw the possibility for big money in the on-campus housing entertainment circuit. Bradley suggested that the inspired messages of the bands should not be lost in their musical styles. "If Stryper could do it with heavy metal why can't these guys do it through punk?" At only 8 dollars a person this is sure to be a swinging time. BYU shuttle buses will leave regularly from outside the Morris Center the evening of the event.

Ed. note : ALL, My Name, and Lemons actually are playing at Club DV8 on Wednesday, December 8th. Tickets are available at Sonic Garden for $8. The doors open at 8:00pm, DV8 is a private club for members. No restrictions! (This means anyone that pays can go.)

SONIC GARDEN CD EXCHANGE PRESENTS

The 1st annual

All I Want For Christmas Is My 2 CD's Sale!

Buy one new disc, get $2 off the second new disc

or

Buy one used disc, get $3 off the second used disc

or lose lots of money by shopping elsewhere

(void on sale items and promotions)
Expires 12/24/93

Are you just about silly trying to decide on gifts for your loved ones? Get them Sonic Garden gift certificates!

748 EAST 820 NORTH PROVO, UTAH 84606
PHONE: 801 - 37-SONIC • FAX: 801-375-1123

Looking for the latest in hair care?

Then come to

Allen Fraser Hair Co.

We use only the finest in hair care products:

Aveda • Paul Mitchell • TIGI

How sure are we that you'll love our salon?

Just clip this ad & come in for a deep conditioning treatment~FREE!

One per customer-new clients only.

Call 375-5368 for an appointment today!

40 West 100 North in Provo

This Month At Cafe Haven

BOOKSTORE • CAFE

Friday, December 3

Language performance featuring the Provocative Alex Caldiero.

7:30 pm Free

Saturday, December 11

Acoustic music by Dr. Pity.

8:00 pm Free

Saturday, December 18

Book signing with Calvin Grondahl, cartoonist. Utah Sex and Travel Guide.

7-9 pm Free

New Hours (beginning December 6):

Monday-Thursday 7 am-8 pm

Friday-Saturday 7 am-10 pm

1605 S. State St. • Orem, Utah • 221-9910

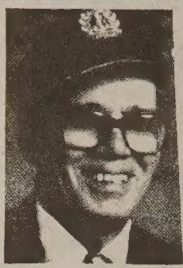

Opinion

Deck the halls with footballs

As the holidays approach, it is a time for me to reflect on the world we live in and the trials we all endure. In the time I have been your opinion editor, I have seen eastern Europe sink deeper into war, Haiti's democracy flounder, and Israel once again become a hotbed for violence.

While all these events truly count as tragedies, they pale when you consider what our cougar football team has gone through this year. Think about it. What if you worked your heart out every day and then had to play football in front of 60,000 of the most fickle fans in the world? I almost cry when I think of how much weight the Cougar Pride must carry at the games when all the other "fans" have decided to ponder the cultural significance of their nachos rather than "rise and shout" for the best damn team ever to play in the WAC!

You people should be thankful you even have a football team. With all the strife in the former Yugoslav republic, I bet they don't even catch any good games on cable. Seeing a world-class Division I NCAA outing is

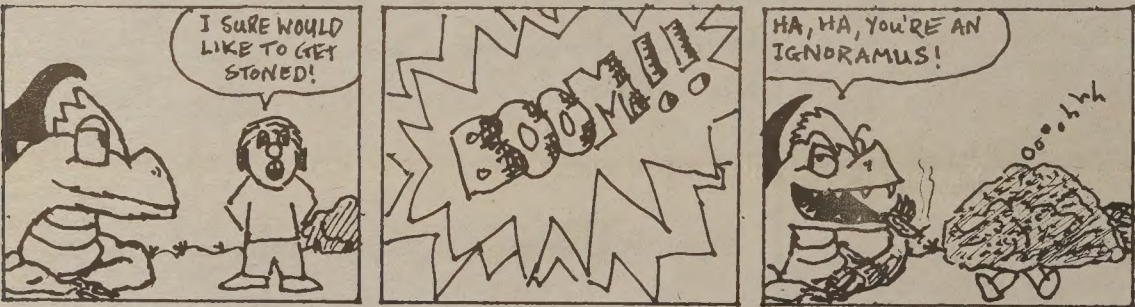

A SPORTING LOOK
by
Thad Squelch
Sports/Opinion
Dweeb

not even a possibility. It would be safe to say that they would cheer like lions if they were allowed to enter Cougar Stadium.

Now that I think of it, perhaps we could send our WAC Championship team over to eastern Europe. The awesome Cougar offensive line could protect John Walsh from looters as he accurately threw humanitarian aid into the homes of all who were in need. Meanwhile, the brutal defensive line would protect the borders of these helpless countries.

This would bring me back to fan appreciation. It's time we got off our butts and showed the football team that we love 'em. While there are no more home games left this season, there are still things you could do. Write an encouraging letter to the player of your choice. Bake brownies for the team. Perhaps you could write a song. The important thing is to let the team know that you appreciated them. If we aren't careful, they may ship our boys off to places where they would be more appreciated, like Bosnia.

Bills and Melvins "the lost episodes" by Greg Risk

the 6th floor of the SWKT

by Richard Warden, therapist

As part of my position as Electroshock Therapy Technician in the Office of Student Behavior Modification, I deal with students everyday who need help with problems that can be quite severe. Young men, for example, who get stuck with mission calls to the US. Young women who are trying to overcome serious feminism temptations. Students troubled by a history of voting Democratic in national elections. Students with past involvement in unofficial publications. I deal with a lot of loathsome people everyday, but after my treatments, they can easily be mistaken for any other BYU student. Except for the twitches.

I congratulate this fine publication for its recent attention to several of these problems and for giving me the opportunity to make students more aware of the services available in this office; we feel that we are one of the most under-utilized facilities on campus. Last month we held an informal competition with the Ombudsman's office and found that students were turning to them for help more than three times as often as to us.

Some of my fondest memories are of providing therapy for confused and disturbed students who come to us with a real desire for change. One young lady came to me in tears after consulting with her bishop. She had brought shame on her family and brought her continuing education at BYU into serious jeopardy by signing her name to a letter published in the Daily Uniforce which lambasted Lavelle Edwards and our Cougars for what she saw as a shoddy performance in the Utah game. After several sessions with her, she has become a Cougarette.

One of the most important aspects of counseling with the Office of Student Behavior Modification is that everyone needs to be involved for real success to be possible—not only the student, but his friends, family, and ecclesiastical leader. One young man was referred to our office by the bishop of his student ward. At the time, this student was despondent and didn't see any way to change. He thought he would never be able to stop and respect the flag when the national anthem was played. All that has changed after two months of counseling with us, and it was only possible with everyone's support. His roommates all pitched in to keep him from swallowing his tongue after his therapy sessions and wake him up when he blanked out in church meetings. Even his professors have agreed to help by covering him with a blanket when he starts shivering uncontrollably in class.

I believe that all students could be helped in some way by one of our electrical, chemical, or mechanical treatments. We have worked with faculty and students here at BYU for several years now and have had some wonderful successes. Editors who used to hate football. Administrators who were pro-ERA. Students who believed in evolution. All of them have been helped to turn their lives around, and it has been an immense pleasure to me to see them go through this process.

I never forget the people I've helped. I recognize them everywhere. They might have nervous ticks or pause for a few minutes in mid-sentence, but they all dress like J. Crew models, get A's in their religion classes, and love every aspect of BYU. So come on up to see us. We think that we could help you too.

Readers' Forum

The Daily Uniforce accepts anything. Just give it to us and we'll print it. No, really, we mean it. Anything at all. If you have something you've been wanting to say but thought it was too stupid to publish, give it to us! Even if it's in crayon or on a napkin or something, we'll take it. Just tell us what you think and we'll put it in. Yep, that's us, we print anything!

Love That Ad

To the editor:

The Daily Uniforce is good. Your advertisement for diamond rings with the beautiful girl with the poufy bangs and those enormous eyelashes inspired me to go out and buy three engagement rings. They are pretty. Please tell me what else I should buy.

LeMar Yok
Easy Mark, UT

Great Juicer

To the editor:

Thank you for your recent inquiry regarding the Veg-O-Matic. As you know, Mr. Daily Uniforce, vegetables are an important part of a healthy diet. Of course, who has time these days to prepare a large serving of vegetables for every meal? That's why we here at RONCO developed the Veg-O-Matic juicer for on-the-go people like yourself. I am confident that this will be an opportunity the whole Uniforce family will want to take advantage of. Simply return the enclosed response form and soon you and Mrs. Uniforce will be enjoying the nutritional benefits of freshly blended juice from your favorite vegetables. Thank you again for your inquiry.

Bob Robertson
RONCO President
Boring, IO

Trash the Goobers

To the editor:

I am writing in regard to the deteriorating level of personal hygiene that I have witnessed on the Lord's campus. Not a day goes by that I see someone do something so completely disgusting that I have to sing a hymn to avoid retching on the spot. It's not just people with repugnant body odor and flakey dandruff, it's also those people who huck loogies or insist on blowing their noses with their fingers and then leave the phlegm lying around for all the rest of us to see. Why just the other day while walking across campus I witnessed a long stream of green saliva spurt from a student's mouth. When I kindly asked him to refrain from such a vulgar act, he very sincerely said, "Oh, I'm sorry. I have a cold." What's that supposed to mean? Maybe spitting goobers is acceptable in the "real world," but BYU certainly is not real—that's why I came here. It's high time that some of you think about where you are standing when you snort and spit.

Willie Windywithle
Provo Non-Sequiter

What the?

To the editor:

I hate blowing up my nose backwards. Do you ever let buffalo roam? Sometimes yellow just plain hurts. I asked why not up, but she wasn't. Sour grapes reverently. People who think are.

Chip O'McSon, Jr.
Sortof, OK

Those Guys

To the editor:

Once again the Ute fans showed us what meanies they really are. Last year they threw spitwads at us, and the year before that they spiked the Gatoraid cooler with caffeinated Coke, and the year before that they pantsed Cosmo. And now this year they tried to pull down Rex Lee's upraised arms to keep us from winning. The only bowl they deserve is some Tidy-Bowl.

J. Whoosh
Provo

Uncertain About Sex

To the editor:

Upon reading the correction made by the Daily Uniforce on Nov. 23 in regard to the update printed on Nov. 17 which was critical of the addendum written Nov. 3 which underscored the clarification made on Oct. 29 in regards to the article accidentally printed the previous day, we were confused. Is Pat a man or a woman?

Dana Fenders
Kelly Bumpers
Reilly O. Bease
Gumpton, IL
and three others named Pat

Viewpoint

The Great Debate: Bills & Melvins

No

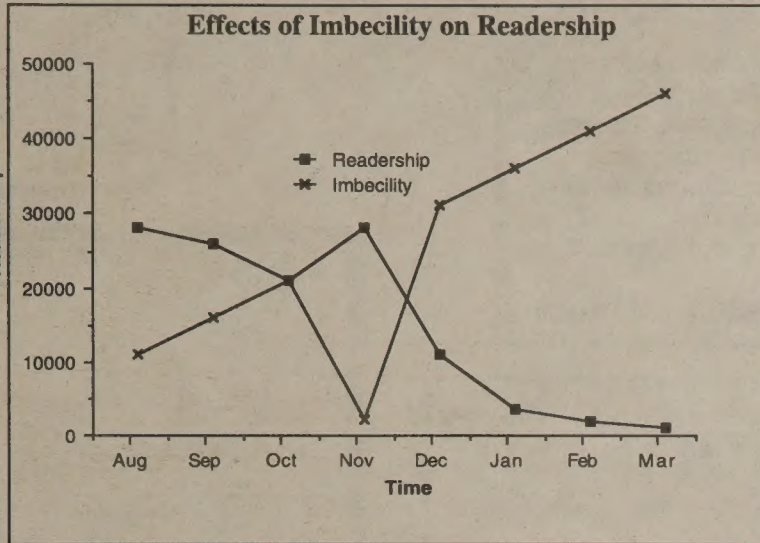

The Daily Uniforce has been accomplicating a travesty: Bills & Melvins. I have consistently been offended and mortified by the gargantuan combustive lizard and his hemoglobin depleting undead friend. But not only is Bills & Melvins' offensiveness to the palate a reason to exclude it from your pages, but your impetus should also

by Dr. A. K. Deam
Professor of Verbology

be in your readership. I have just concluded an extensive inquisition into the inclinations and disinclinations of Uniforce patrons.

Notice the graph.

Since the commencement of fall semester, Uniforce readership has progressively abated. During the same duration, Bills & Melvins' imbecility has perceptibly distended. Heed the anomaly in the month of Thanksgiving. This augmentation in readership is apparently owing to the remission of imbecility in Bills & Melvins. In substantiality, I recollect diaphragmic spasms after perusing his comic strip that month; they almost made me shed H₂O from my ocular ducts the spasms were so vehement. My inferences are scientifically demonstrative of the effects of Bills & Melvins' imbecility. Using a Chi square test, I was able to conjecture that my findings are 99 percent significant.

So in illuminance of this evidence, it would be illogical for the Uniforce to persist in promulgating Bills & Melvins.

Yes

Recently, there have been many letters attacking my brother and his comic strip Bills & Melvins. How can you judge a man and his comics so harshly when you don't even by The Brother of Bills & Melvins'

Cartoonist

know him and his troubles?

My brother is a wonderful artist who has had many rough times in his life. At birth, he was dropped by the doctor and has had to live with a flattened upper forehead. The kids laughed at him in school. Our siblings called him blockhead. My mom had him answer the door to scare away Jehovah Witnesses. His life was tough and his only love was his art.

He used to stay inside during recess drawing pictures of himself with a round head. Sometimes when he was angry and depressed he'd draw pictures of all his classmates with flattened upper foreheads and him with a round head. It was pitiful.

Then one foggy halloween, his teacher came and asked him to play Frankenstein in the school haunted house. He was a success, but not for long. People began calling him Frankenstein, and once again he only had his art.

In high school he had few friends. He dated a girl with six toes and fingers his freshman year. His first kiss was to a hunched back girl with three ears he met at a dance. He got in trouble with the bishop for "getting too close" to a three-breasted girl with vestigial arms. But none of them brought him happiness.

His first love besides art came after dating a girl from an obscure Polynesian island. There all the people strapped boards to their childrens' heads at birth. Everyone had flat heads. Our whole family encouraged the relationship. She accepted the gospel, they became engaged and expected to marry when he turned 18. But happiness has never been my brother's fate.

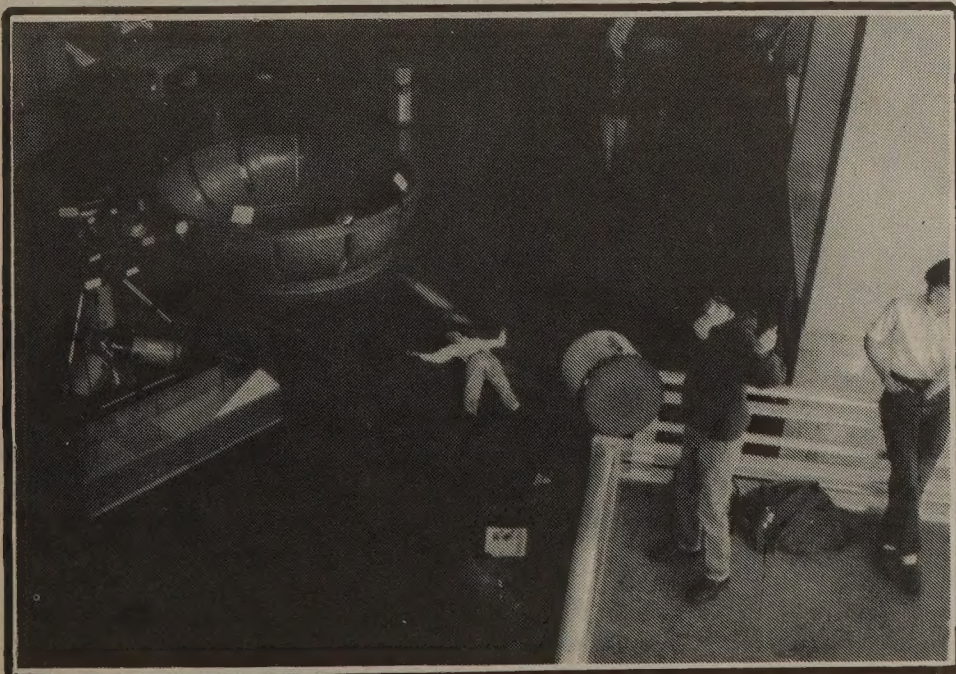

On a trip home, Mesah (Polynesian for "beautiful tabletop"), my brother's fiancé died. It seems she was transporting a large box of chickens strapped to her head and a cross-eyed predatory bird picked her up, subsequently dropping her 200 yards into the Pacific where she was eaten by an albino great white with square teeth.

My brother was distant and reclusive after that. He wouldn't eat chicken. He'd just stay in his room drawing. My brother still can't go to the shark tank at Sea World without crying.

We didn't think he'd survive. In fact, he tried to kill himself. He set up a mechanism where he pulled a string firing a rifle at his head. If it hadn't been for the dent in his forehead, he wouldn't be here today. But you know what pulled him out of his slump? Do you know what has kept him going these years? Bills & Melvins.

He can sit in his room at his drawing board and make people laugh — sometimes. Bills & Melvins is his chance at a normal life, maybe even success. Don't take that away from him. The Daily Uniforce is his hope. Don't crucify another saint.

Oops!

Jay Macpherson a freshman from Yerbo, Kansas got a little carried away using the Vortex cannon yesterday. He maimed Helen Gerta a sophmore from Bruin, New Mexico.

Take a break
from the books
at Mama's
the FRESH ALTERNATIVE

CATCH THIS WEEKS
ACOUSTIC VENUE!

Wed 8
Insibid Brown
Thu 9
Matt Harding
Fri 10
Sarah DeFord
Sat 11
Picture This

840 N 700 E
Provo 373-1525

CLIMBING IS THE MAIN THING.

AT MOUNTAINWORKS...

YOU WON'T FIND FAKE, OUT OF SHAPE "MOUNTAINEERS" TRYING TO SELL YOU THE WRONG GEAR.

YOU WON'T FIND INEXPERIENCED "CLIMBING" SALESMEN TRYING TO SELL YOU WORTHLESS BARGAIN GEAR.

YOU WILL FIND REAL CLIMBERS WHO CAN SHOW YOU REAL GEAR AND ANSWER YOUR QUESTIONS HONESTLY.

MOUNTAINWORKS
95 S 300 W
PROVO
371-0223

HOURS
MON-FRI 10-7
SAT 10-6
FREE COFFEE

The Edge

Utah's Newest And
Hottest Dance Club
Is Opening Soon At
153 W. Center In Provo.
Look For It!

Conference to address issues

By ALBERTO TOMASA
Uniforce Sports Writer

A conference to address issues will be held in order to address these issues that need to be addressed. The issues addressed will be fully addressed in order to understand and help resolve these issues. John Walsh will be there to throw a few passes.

Just in time for Christmas

BEEHIVE Birth Control Kit

Includes:

- 1 Thermometer
- 1 12-month calendar
- 1 box of gold stars
- 40 "black-out-day" stickers

Bonus

first 50 callers get free 7 lb bag of M&M's with the green ones picked out.

377-2980

HANK'S FAMILY-O-RAMA All-American Banquet Buffet

Chow down at our Western-themed all-you-can-eat smorgasboard! There's something for everybody:

- Salisbury franks, prime rib casserole, twice-fried scones, and meatloaf cobbler for the grown-up folks!
- For the lil' pardners, Twinkie bake, taffy fries, chocolate chip pizza, and cotton candy roll-ups!
- Easy-to-eat grub for the old timers, too, like our world famous chocolate Jell-o!

HANK SAYS: FAMILIES THAT DINE TOGETHER, STAY TOGETHER

Strapped for cash?

Need a little extra spending dough?

Donate organs and receive up to $1000.00 a week.

Most people don't realize how many organs the body houses that aren't absolutely essential for maintaining life. Several organs can be easily donated with only minimal after effects or health risks to the donor. Join thousands of other students who have discovered the lucrative business of selling a little piece of yourself.

Come to 8700N 25E and knock three times on the basement door.

Or call 555-1256 and ask for Vinny.

DEUTER
Both
Since 1969

39
WEST

Dashing through the Wool!
"Ruff Hewn"

THE BEST OF BOTH STORES TOGETHER
University Mall, Orem • 225-3900

GOURMET BICYCLES
Tastiest Bikes In Town

Not Just Great Taste ...
But Good For You

1155 N. Canyon Rd.
Provo, Utah 84604
(801) 377-3969

Rental Bikes

'93 Bikes 10-20% off

'94 Bikes 10% off

Everything else 10-30% off

• Great Christmas Gift Ideas

• Winter Overhaul Special $50

prices good through December

Formerly Highlander Bike Shop

Weddings R Us

Your nuptial one-stop

We'll take you from start to finish—from first date to chosen mate:

- Romantic, hassle-free proposals
- In-law arbitration
- Wedding night workshops
- Value-packed honeymoons
- Gift solicitation methods
- Over 100 DJ's and Polka bands to choose from
- Wedding reception get-to-know-you games

Special this week—Two for one temple recommends.

MASTER DEBT

ACHTUNG BABY!

STUDENTS

Don't borrow money from your parents!
Borrow it from us!

- No more whining and crying to your parents
- No more loan-sharks at 30% interest

Get in debt with us before you even have a job at only 25% interest!

CALL TODAY:

Master Debt 1 (800) WASTED$

Sports

NUMERO UNO IN PROVO: Overjoyed fans express their support for Provo's best.

BYU Football team still tops in local football rankings

By TAB WELCH
Uniforce Opinion Writer

The local rankings came out yesterday and BYU still holds a comfortable position in first place receiving 21 of the possible 27 first place votes. "We just sure are proud of these boys," said David Ginch, team trainer, "they work hard for this No. 1 ranking and they deserve it."

Provo Dental College came in a surprising second with five first place votes. They clobbered tenth-ranked Joaquin Elementary 45-13 in a heavy rain last Friday morning. Coach Gary Lineker, D.D.S., attributed his team's success to a great recruiting year and several key transfers from the Eugene School of Orthodonture. The other first place vote went to a disappointed Joaquin Elementary.

Rounding out the Top Six were the UVSCextramural Turtle Doves, Bon-Losee Academy, Timpview High and Provo School of Circus Animal Trainers. Bon-Losee moved up to fourth after beating the then second-ranked Provo School of Circus Animal Trainers on the road 16-14 on kicker and hair washing specialist Jaylynn Detmer's 43 yard field goal as time expired. The field goal was set up by a punt blocked by starting Bon-Losee mousser PattyLynn Walsh's hair.

Brigham Young Academy was ranked in tenth place despite their loss by forfeit to Copper Canyon Elementary. For the eleventh game in a row this season, the BYA team failed to appear. Josh Luke had no explanation.

Irate fans protested outside the UVFAA (Utah Valley Amateur Football Association) headquarters saying that BYU's weak schedule did not justify the No. 1 ranking. They feel that the only way to have an outright champion is to have a championship Bowl game.

The game they seek would pit BYU (6-5) and the Provo Dental College (5-7 overall, 5-1 in the league) in a winner-takes-all game at Kiwanis Park on Christmas Day. Channel 12 has agreed to pick up the game locally and a deal is being worked out now with ESPN.

BYU Raquetball team wins national championship

By RON GORDON
Uniforce Sports Writer

The BYU raquetball team won the national Championship. "We won the national championship again," said Ron Gordon the team captain. "It's great that they won the national championship but can any of them play football?" said influential sportswriter Josh Luke.

Police Beat

By HANNAH JORGENSEN
Uniforce Sports Writer

Vandalism

Still at large is the prankster who has been littering the campus with wrecked cars since before Thanksgiving. The cars will sometimes be accompanied by threats such as, "Arrive alive or die." No possible motives or suspects have been identified as of yet. However, Express Towing is under investigation.

Lewd conduct

A female student was apprehended last Wednesday as she was caught leaning against a study carrel in a suggestive manner. She claimed to be "just talking to a friend." University Police fined her $75 and assigned her to write a 12-page paper on modesty.

A man was caught lingering outside the stalls in the men's restroom on the first floor of the JKHB and well, you know what that can lead to...He was fined an undisclosed amount of money and called mean names.

Suspicious shopping patterns

A family was held for questioning in the upper offices of the BYU Bookstore after they were seen attempting to leave the premises having bought less than $20 in BYU paraphernalia.

Misuse of Phone

A student in the dorms was caught trying to use a phone to hammer a nail into a board for a school project. The suspect was apprehended and publicly humiliated.

SPRING BREAK '94

Lake Havasu, AZ

The City of Lake Havasu, AZ, America's Newest Hot Spot and host to the largest Spring Break party in the west, is seeking responsible and energetic campus representatives to promote their "Roar of '94" Spring Break event. Earn money and FREE trips! Call Jeff at (801) 576-4FUN or (800) 4HAVASU for further details.

WE'RE GROWING.

While you've been enjoying the summer, we've been making the Rock Garden an even better place to climb and train. A new cooling system. A slew of new holds. A new stereo.

Best of all, we're building a new cutting-edge bouldering area and getting rid of the gravel, installing crash pads and shredded Teva rubber.

And even with all the improvements, it's still cheaper to climb here than to buy two bags of potato chips.

THE ROCK GARDEN
22 S. FREEDOM
BLVD.
375-2388
M-F 12-10
SAT 10-12

Lifestyle

Bananas and grapes highlight fashion show

By FRANCIS HAMMIL
and JEROME PERKINS
Uniforce Sports Writers

Inspired by the popularity of the recent BYU bookstore fashion show, the individual colleges gathered in the Wilkinson Center Ballroom last night to present THE FIRST ANNUAL BYU INTER-COLLEGE FASHION SHOW. "We gave the different colleges the chance to work together and this is what they chose to do," said BYUSA Spokesman Susan Jenkins.

The philosophy department, after much contemplation, developed a line of fashion fit for an emperor. "We call it simply 'the new clothes'," said sophomore Josh Hibbert from Ventura, CA. When asked by Standards whether or not the outfits were "2ZNEEZ" he replied, "Sure! That's the beauty of these clothes, man. Don't you see them?"

Following this fiasco, in which the models were politely asked to leave the stage, the College of Fine Arts and Communications took the show to new eco-centric heights.

Deeply upset by reports of unrecycled Uniforce advertisement inserts, they decided to resolve the problem. "Like the hair of many RMs, we didn't realize that the inserts were falling out so rapidly," commented freshman Dolores Fogerty, journalism major from El Paso, TX. "We thought the trash on the ground was just because grounds crew doesn't ever do their jobs."

For the fashion show, this College joined together with the Home Sciences Textile Department to create an entire wardrobe of paper clothing made from these inserts. "The people at BYU are so stiff; we thought that suits and dresses with cardboard rigidity would be an instant hit!" said senior Wendy Pratt from Eugene, OR.

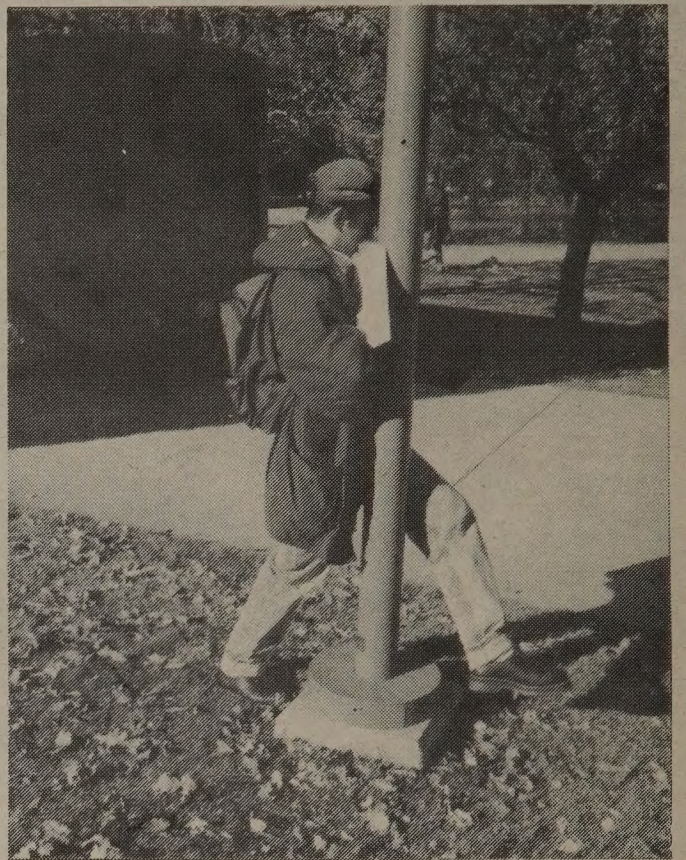

The College of Biology and Agriculture, inspired by old fruit-of-the-loom commercials, designed a new line of lingerie for poor married students. "Not only are our full-body banana, apple, and grape outfits attractive, they are also edible!" said junior, food sciences major

Randy Tobler from Carbondale, CO. When asked how one could tell the male outfits from the female outfits, his only reply was: "by their fruits you shall know them."

Perhaps the biggest shock of the evening came from the College of Physical Education. For the first time in school history, it introduced a line of new BYU issue with shorts that actually reach the knees! "Popular colors continue to be blue and grey," said recreation management major Doug Hart from Boston, MA. "For those individuals seeking variety, shorts and shirts with three different patterns (your choice of the letters 'S', 'M', or 'L') are also available. Mixing and matching are encouraged."

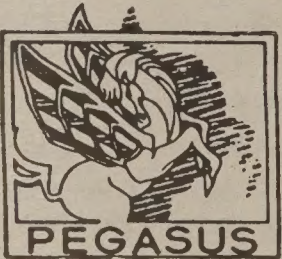

The psychology department, it seems, failed to show. All their students had been put on registration hold this semester.

The College of Home Sciences, who we thank for providing the refreshments, passed out free hair bows (the ultimate fashion accessory) to all who participated in the show.

Look out!!

Unsuspecting student, Larry O'Bannon, was so involved in his studies, he smashed right into a lamppost. Ouch! That smarts.

PEGASUS
MUSIC • VIDEO

WHERE THE HITS ARE ALWAYS ON SALE!

WINTER SALE

Bring in this coupon and receive a discount of

$2.00 OFF
ON CASSETTE

On any recording of your choice!

Provo and Orem locations of Pegasus Music & Video only
(Not valid on sale or budget items or with any other offer)

Expires December 18, 1993

Bring in this coupon and receive a discount of

$3.00 OFF
ON COMPACT DISC

On any recording of your choice!

Provo and Orem locations of Pegasus Music & Video only
(Not valid on sale or budget items or with any other offer)

Expires December 18, 1993